More than six million people in the United States are living with Alzheimer's and more than 11 million are serving as unpaid dementia caregivers. The Alzheimer's Association® works to address the global Alzheimer's disease epidemic by providing education and support to the millions who face dementia every day, while advancing critical research toward methods of treatment, prevention and, ultimately, a cure. We are here to help.

- » We provide healthcare professionals with the tools to diagnose Alzheimer's and educate people with the disease on available therapies and resources.

RESEARCH

- » As the world's largest nonprofit funder of Alzheimer's research, we have invested more than $300 million in 920 projects in 45 countries.
- » We bring the global research community together to collaborate, connect and address common challenges. The Alzheimer's Association International Conference® is the world's largest forum for the dementia research community.

ADVOCACY

- » We recruit advocates across Minnesota and North Dakota to ensure the need for Alzheimer's care, education and research is heard at every level of government.
- » We call on state governments to increase public awareness, ensure quality dementia training and provide caregiver supports.
- » We help pass landmark legislation, such as the National Alzheimer's Project Act, which mandated a national plan to fight Alzheimer's.
- » We urge the federal government to increase research funding and improve access to Alzheimer's diagnosis and care planning. Funding levels at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) have increased substantially through our efforts.
